STUDIES IN WRITING STUDENTS MAKE THE TOP TEN

Columbia Basin Trust - March 13, 2010: Forty-four young writers took part in Columbia Basin Trust's (CBT) creative writing challenge and ten are closer to winning the $1,000 cash prize.

CBT's SCRATCH Writing Challenge asked youth ages 15-29 to submit works of 3,000-5,000-word fiction with appealing characters, a dynamic plot and magnificent style.

Three of the top ten entries were written by Selkirk College Studies in Writing students: Julia Caceres Booth, Chace Kabatoff and Melinda Pederson.

Throughout the three-month challenge aspiring authors had the opportunity to receive individual mentorship and participate in workshops on creative writing hosted by students from Selkirk College's Studies in Writing program. Similar workshops were delivered to four high school English classes.

PATH WAITS FOR RESTORATION

Nelson Star - May 26, 2010: Nelson City Council is taking a closer look at a proposal which would see Selkirk College students and a local erosion control specialist band together to restore a portion of shoreline along the city's West Waterfront Pathway.

Several spurs of land were created along the pathway in the 1990s in response to declining fish habitats and loss of shoreline. However, much of the created land has eroded over time.

Community volunteers say now is the ideal time to repair the most damaged spur, as rock is currently available from a highway blasting project taking place west of Nelson. They've asked the city to acquire 40 truckloads of the fill and store it until students from Selkirk College's Integrated Environment Planning program can repair the spur next April.

EMPLOYEE ENGAGEMENT ACTION PLAN PROGRESS REPORT

Approximately one year ago, the Employee Engagement Action Plan was made available to the College community. At that same time, a commitment was made to provide implementation progress reports on a regular basis, the first being issued in October 2009.

A report that updates progress made up to May 2010 was recently discussed with the Implementation Advisory Committee and shared with the Board of Governors. This report can now be seen at <http://selkirk.ca/media/aboutwebsection/departments/humanresources/EES-Action-Plan-May-2010-Progress-Report-Final.pdf>.

A couple of areas which are of particular significance are the completion of a Communications Audit and an accompanying Action Plan, a review of College committees' effectiveness and the announcement of a leadership workshop for all supervisors and managers in August. It has been decided that the focus of this workshop will be communications.

Read all of your content, including titles and descriptions, out loud. If you stumble over words, so will your audience (potential students and customers). Rewrite until everything reads smoothly.

Tip #2

CALL FOR GALA 2010 AUCTION TEAM PROPOSALS - DEADLINE JUNE 1

Gala 2010 is offering the opportunity for faculty and staff to raise funds for their program to support projects, competitions, field trips and student awards. This year, we are hoping to “change up” the Gala auction.

We are looking for a team of five to seven staff/faculty from one program to coordinate, ask communities and friends for donations and run the auction on November 27.

The team will work with the Development staff to prepare a letter to donors and a complete a plan for the auction portion of the Gala. The program would receive funds raised from the silent auction for their program and students.

We will also need a group (preferably students from a different program) to decorate Christmas trees with decorations that are in our storage room. The decorating will take place on the day before the Gala, November 26, at Mary Hall. The trees will be part of the silent auction with 50% of the “tree fund” going to the program that prepared the trees for the auction.

A third proponent we are adding to this year’s Gala is to have our fine arts and trades programs more involved. We are asking these programs to prepare up to five one of a kind, handmade pieces that will be auctioned during the live auction portion of the event. The program will be paid for the materials, agreed prior to building or creating the piece, and 50% of the live auction funds will go back to the program that created the piece for the Gala auction.

The Gala is a great opportunity to raise funds for and showcase our programs and this new strategy will support that effort. If you are interested in working the Gala auction in any one of these capacities, please apply to Pat Henman or Joyce Buckler in the Development Department. Your proposal should include your program name, number of volunteers and what the funds will be used for. The deadline for applications is June 1, 2010.

If your program would like to participate in the live auction portion of the Gala please send a confirmation. The exact piece your program or school will enter into the auction can be finalized in October 2010.

Thank you very much.
