Student data

Ministry of Education Interactive Enrolment Tool

Explore the Ministry of Education's enrolment model by interacting with the different sections that describe each of the four main student enrolment drivers. Student enrolment is influenced by demographics, migration, public-independent transition, and course load retention. All values are reported in funded Full-Time Equivalent \(FTE\).

The Ministry of Education District Enrolment Model has been developed based on the Cohort Survival Method approach. This method takes into consideration the existing student population and calculates how many students will leave and enter the system in a given school year. These flows of students are grouped into the four enrolment drivers: Migration, Demographics, Independent-Public Student Transition, and Continuous Student Retention. Each of these drivers will be explained in more detail below and apply only to B.C Public School students.

BC Student Outcomes Dashboard

Each year, tens of thousands of former post-secondary students are asked about their educational experiences, subsequent employment, and further studies. Find out what former students are doing one to two years after their B.C. post-secondary education. This interactive tool allows you to filter by student group, institution, program area, and program name.
